

Ocean Scholars: Primary Field Examples

OSAH's mission is to provide a forum for scholars whose research and interests broadly relate to the ocean. All scholars will be asked to identify their primary field of interest. The sub-field examples are simply meant to reflect the diversity or edge-cases of research activities that might fall into each primary category. Some fields, however, are truly cross-cutting and defy easy classification, such as Conservation or Indigenous Peoples' Traditional Knowledge. While these lists are not exhaustive, we hope they will help you in selecting your categories.
